MASTER'S MESSAGE

The men of Alpha Epsilon Pi take great pride in the University of Florida and their own Phi Gamma Chapter.

As students, we are proud to be a part of one of the South's largest academic institutions, with its thirteen colleges and four schools.

As Fraternity men, we are proud of our prime goals of outstanding academic excellence, and the development of understanding and life-long Brotherhood.

Fraternity life plays a prominent part in a student's education. The Fraternity offers its new members guidance and assistance. This usually comes at the most critical point in the adjustment to college and its new surroundings. The ideals of scholarship, leadership, loyalty, and responsibility are a major part of a Fraternity program. The development of poise, personality, and proper social behavior, all so important in later life, are also further responsibilities of the Fraternity system. All this added together forms the mystical bond of Brotherhood; a Fraternity's most cherished possession. Here are made the true friendships that last a life time.

It is indeed a great pleasure for us to introduce you to the University of Florida and the Fraternity System. I hope as you look through the following book, and as we meet personally, you can see the achievements as well as the inseparable friendships formed in the bond of Fraternity life.

As Master of Alpha Epsilon Pi, I express to you, on behalf of myself and my Brothers, the best of luck in these up-coming years at school.

By aiding academic achievement, a fraternity can perform one of its most tangible benefits to an individual.

Alpha Epsilon Pi has developed an effective academic program that has resulted in many national awards in addition to the University of Florida's President's Award. This award is presented annually by the Inter Fraternity Council to the fraternity with the highest scholastic average.

Our academic program consists of study hours, lectures by University professors, individual help and a complete and comprehensive file of study guides, course notes and practice examinations for the majority of courses offered at the University. This program instills good study habits early in one's college career. In addition to the points outlined in our program, new members can always find added help by consulting our chart listing the course numbers and the names of brothers receiving a "B" or above in it.

Each year, an ever increasing number of our pledges and brothers attain above a 3.5 average and become eligible for membership in Phi Eta Sigma, the freshmen honor society.

The other three made 4.0's.

Politics play a vital role in the proper functioning of the university. A fraternity, by actively engaging in campus political life, not only helps provide the university with able, responsible men, but in so doing, the fraternity enables its members to individually advance up the political ladder.

Alpha Epsilon Pi, realizing the importance of politics on campus, has an established, active political program. We encourage every freshman to participating in campus activities and highly skilled in the intricacies of advancement that only a well organized political house is able to do.

The AEPi freshman interested in politics, has the complete support of a hundred man house behind him. With so many of our brothers positively participating in campus activities and highly skilled in the intricacoes of college politics, the interested freshman is in a very advantageous position.

Participation in a political extra curricular serves a two fold purpose. It gives the individual the invaluable experience of leadership training, while at the same time providing him with the satisfaction one gets by aiding his university, his fraternity, and most important, one's self.

Exemplifying AEPi leadership on campus, Brother Jerry Richman has achieved the highest possible position in the Honor Court, that of Chancellor. This position is one of the most coveted in campus politics.

Brother Martin Schwartz, past Lt. Master, was recently appointed to the President's Council as Sect. of the Interior. As such he is in charge of all Campus elections, Student Insurance, and several other financial facets in the Student Government organization.

Brother Stewart Logan, past Chairman of the Public Relations Committee of the I.F.C., has just been appointed by Florida Blue Key as editor of the Homecoming Press Book. He is also a Florida Blue Key Speaker.

AEPi has shown itself to be the spawning grounds for many campus leaders. Paul Bass, a Florida Blue Key Speaker, is also active on the Alumni Affairs Bureau, Homecoming Affairs Staff, and Alpha Kappa Psi. Brother Conn, as well as a member of the Homecoming Affairs Staff, is an active member of the Honor Court Speakers Bureau.

Brothers Kugel, Berman, and Winters are all now serving as Under-Secretaries of the Interior. Brothers Ira Zaeger and Richard Greenwald are both active members of the Freshman Council.

As you can see, our political program is practical and diverse, designed to aid each interested individual in attaining the highest possible level in accordance with his capabilities and ambitions.

THE TAMS

Whenever there is talk on campus concerning where the big party is this weekend the odds are that the talk is about the AEPi House.

From the beginning of the year starting with Homecoming, till the end of the year when we have Spring Frollics, AEPi maintains its reputation for fabulous weekends and big name entertainment.

A typical weekend during the football season runs as follows:

The dated weekend begins with dinner Friday night and a party later that evening with such groups as Jake and the Blenders, Bobby Lewis, or Little Johnny Ace to entertain us. There's a brunch Saturday afternoon where the air is filled with anxiety about the coming game. By game time you'll see the AEPi's and their dates sitting in the fraternity block (usually on the 50 yard line). There's dinner and the theme for the evening's party is announced. Whether it be western, pajama, or Hawaiian, you can be sure of plenty of laughter and AEPi spirit.

CHANTEERS

SILVER SPRINGS

Sounds like fun—you ain't heard nothing yet. This year's Frolics weekend saw the AEPis as hosts to the Fabulous Chantiers on a Friday night. The next day the AEPis and dates journeyed down to Silver Springs for a picnic and guided boat tour through the Springs. The highlight of the weekend came that same night when the house shook to the beat of the world famous Hank Ballard and the Midnighters direct from the Peppermint Lounge in New York.

A weekend like this wasn't the exception, but the rule, for in weekends to come the House rocked to such names as Alladins, the Accents, the million selling Tams, Little Cora and the Fosfornics, and other rock and roll greats.

On weekends when we wanted to change the pace a bit, you could always stop at the House, find a comfortable spot in the hay, and watch a full length movie such as War of the Worlds, West Side Story, Seven Brides for Seven Brothers, and others.

Last year was great, but what about this year? Of course!!! Bigger names and bigger weekends. Remember we have a reputation of "Best on Campus" to maintain, and this we will do.

LABBY HEADS FOR TD

To the men of Alpha Epsilon Pi, athletics is more than just winning or losing. Each athletic event is a time to get together with our dates and show the spirit that AEPi is known for. There are moments of happiness and cheers, and there are moments of disappointment and sorrow. But whether winning or losing, the men of AEPi are behind their teams. All members of the fraternity are eligible to play all sports with the one restriction being ability.

The athletic program of the University is one of the finest in the South. The program for fraternities is governed by the men themselves. Whether as a player or a coordinator, there is a place in the intramurals program for everyone interested. Sportsmanship and fair play is emphasized by the University as well as by AEPi. The intramurals program, run by fraternity men, for fraternity men, has helped us in our goal of building well rounded fraternity men.

Our program for the year started with waterbasketball, which is one of the roughest and fast moving athletic events of the intramural program. The AEPis have always had a team of fine swimmers and competitors; this year led by Sol Finvarb and Larry Poster.

In football the AEPis once again showed why they are always rated as favorites. After beating the Betas and Kappa Sigs, we went on to tie the Phi Taus and later be defeated in the bracket championship play-off.

ATHLETICS

The game ended in a tie and we lost due to a shortage of first downs. Outstanding players were Pete Hennes, Larry Poaster and Steve Labby.

The AEPis faired well this year in handball and basketball. Our fine basketball team led by Steve Chase and Paul Bass whirlwind their way to a first place trophy in the National AEPi regional championships held in St. Louis. In handball, Ed Pottlitzer and Paul Bass went undefeated, thus bringing intramural points and honor to AEPis all over the globe.

Softball, our banner sport, saw the AEPis after winning the bracket championship last year and losing the final playoff to arch rival Sigma Nu, go on this year to beat Sigma Nu, who were the undefeated campus champions.

At this years athletic awards banquet, the outstanding brother athlete award trophy was shared by Brothers Hennes and Bass. Both these boys were outstanding athletes for the Fraternity all year. Outstanding pledge athlete for the year was Richard Lynn.

It was a fine year for the men of AEPi, and each of us are looking forward to September when we can put our program to the test once more. We are proud of that program, calling for spirit and effort, as well as ability, and look forward to the coming year with hopes of bringing the Orange League Trophy to the AEPi house.

PLEDGE MASTER'S MESSAGE

Fraternities, today are going through a period of transition. Gone are the days of the "hell raising", "goldfish eating" social club, instead fraternities are emerging as a character molding, community minded organization. This transition has come about for many reasons; the recent pressure on the fraternity system as a college "frill", the increasing influx of junior college graduates which demand more mature pledge and social programs, and finally, the realization that a fraternity can perform a valuable service to the individual and the community.

This is not to say that a fraternity has turned into an archaic, staid institution, completely void of brotherhood and enjoyment. On the contrary, these activities have been channeled to a more productive end.

Through the scholarship program of Alpha Epsilon Pi, pledges learn good study habits early in college life. These study habits stay with them throughout their college days. The awarding of the President's Scholarship Trophy to Alpha Epsilon Pi proves our program is effective.

A full social life gives one an opportunity to gain and develop social poise and self confidence.

Through our competitive intramural program, sportsmanship and a sense of fair play can be learned.

Internal and external political activity permits a man to advance as far as his leadership capabilities and drive allow.

Above all, AEPi offers brotherhood, an intangible concept in itself that can only be described or felt when one becomes an integral part of an organization such as AEPi.

Alpha Epsilon Pi began a program of transition 11 years ago when we were founded on a premise of maturity in all aspects of fraternity life.

Today we stand ready to meet the challenge of the "new fraternity system", but even more important, our men stand ready to meet another challenge, that of life upon graduation.

PLEDGING

The pledge period is a time of adjustment to a different way of life and to new people, the friendships that develop and grow during college days, last for years after.

It's a time of study and hard work, with the ever present goal of the 2.0 or above average needed for initiation. But there's also fun and lots of it, beer blasts, parties, the spirit one feels cheering on a winning team, working together on those all too frequent work sessions, the sense of belonging, the friendship that's always there when you need it most.

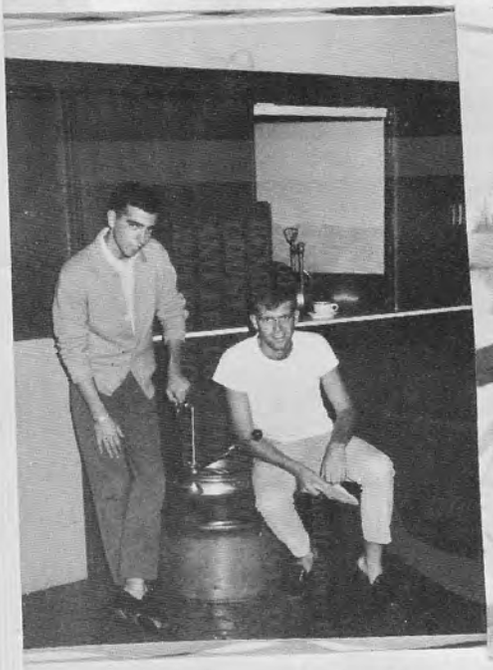
As the fraternity expects certain things in a pledge, the pledge in turn has the right to expect many things from a fraternity. To say that other fraternities do not offer the above would be untrue, but to state that Alpha Epsilon Pi goes about achieving these things in a unique way cannot be argued.

Maturity is the difference. Maturity in pledge training, in the development of better study habits, and instilling the feeling of cooperation.

The Phi Gamma pledge program has been written up in the "All Florida" Magazine (10-16-60) and has received awards from AEPi National in addition to commendation from the university.

Pledge hazing in the form of Hell Week has been eliminated for the more descriptive title — Help Week. This week is spent in services to the university, the community, and the less fortunate. Whether collecting money for the Heart Fund or giving a Christmas party for the under privileged children, the experience of giving is always a rewarding one.

In substituting community service for Hell Week and the development of a realistic approach of the fraternities obligations to its members and community, a pledge is better qualified to accept the responsibilities of brotherhood and even more so, to accept those of the community upon graduation.



A.E. Pi.
we will always be
whether in fair
or in dark stormy weather fraternity
will keep us together
we're brothers true
till the day we die
let love concentrate us
till death separate us
we're A.E.Pi.

COMMUNITY SERVICE

A fraternity soon realizes that its organization, manpower and spirit can be of great service to the school and community. This realization has enabled Phi Gamma Chapter of Alpha Epsilon Pi to win four national community service awards in addition to much local recognition.

Each semester worthwhile local projects are gone over as to their merit and benefit to the community. The majority of the selected projects are scheduled during "Help Week" when all the spirit and enthusiasm of our soon to be initiated brothers can be channeled to these activities. "Help Week" projects may include a city beautification program, Heart Fund Drives and various campus activities. The remaining projects are evenly spaced throughout the school year.

Our annual Christmas party, complete with Santa, presents and ice cream is held in the children's ward of the J. Hillis Miller Health Center and contributes much to the high spirits of the children.

But this spirit of giving is not just confined to the Christmas season. In cooperation with the Inter Fraternity Council's Campus Blood Drive, AEPi received first place in monthly and over all donations,

Through a good community service program, Alpha Epsilon Pi is helping to gain a favorable name for itself and the fraternity system on the University of Florida campus.
